ROADS SLIPPERY AFTER SEASON'S FIRST SNOWFALL

Adams county highways were "a little slippery, but in good shape," the state highway department announced here at noon today after 26 plows had worked since 3 o'clock this morning to keep up with the rapidly falling snow.

The flakes began to fall around 1:30 o'clock and an hour later, highway employees were notified to get ready for work. Clinking crews were among the first out as highways became slippery from the snow.

An even blanket of from 3 1/2 to 4 inches was spread over the county, the plow crews reported, with little more snow in the mountains than fell in the lower parts of the county.

Bad Weather Forecast

While the sun was shining here this afternoon, the Associated Press in reporting on the state-wide situation, carried a prediction by the weatherman that a mixture of sleet and melted snow plus cold temperatures tonight is scheduled to make road conditions more hazardous.

Eastern Pennsylvania received the heaviest snowfall with as much as nine inches expected in Philadelphia by tonight. The first flakes appeared at 1 a. m. today with the storm depositing six inches of snow by 11 a. m. and showing every indication of carrying into the afternoon. Light snow was reported in the western portion of the state but mild temperatures prevailed there.

Locally the sun was said to be melting the snow on highways throughout the county.

Storm Troubles

Harrisburg had four inches, Bethlehem three and Pittsburgh reported only a light snowfall.

A sudden squall that formed over Cape Hatteras ushered in the first snowflakes in eastern Pennsylvania 15 minutes after a clear, cold Christmas ended.

Littlestown CHURCH ENJOYS XMAS EVE PARTY AT FAMILY NIGHT

A large group of Sunday school and church members of the Centenary Methodist church, the Rev. Grantas E. Hoopert pastor, attended the Christmas Family "Nite" and party on Wednesday evening, in the Sunday school room. The following program was presented: Scripture, Luke 2:1-15, and a prayer poem by Mrs. Grantas E. Hoopert; a slide film, "The Christmas Story," was shown by Warren Harner, which was interspersed with carol singing under the leadership of Chester S. Byers; story, "The Little Match Girl," by Mrs. Joseph Musselman. Santa arrived and presented gifts to the children. The pastor and his family received a gift of money.

Refreshments were served at the close of the program by this committee: Mrs. Jesse Byers, chairman; Miss Emma Forrest, Miss Doris Kerns, Miss Ruth Miller and Mrs. Edward Harner. The program committee included the following: Mrs. Grantas E. Hoopert, chairman; Ralph Ruggles, Jr., Chester S. Byers, Miss Betty Miller and Mrs. Joseph Musselman.

The Christmas cantata, "The World's Redeemer," was presented Wednesday evening by the senior choir of Redeemer's Reformed church. The offering will be given to World Service for the relief of distressed persons in the war torn countries. Following this service, the combined Junior and Senior choirs went Christmas caroling to the home of the sick and shut-in members. After the caroling, the choirs returned to the home of the pastor, the Rev. Frank E. Reynolds where they were served with hot chocolate and doughnuts by Miss Mary Jane Staley.

Dr. Heindel Joins Committee's Staff

Dr. Richard H. Heindel, formerly of Hanover, has recently joined the professional staff of the U. S. Senate Foreign Relations committee. Previously, Dr. Heindel was working in the State department and also has been doing a comparative study of world libraries and publishing for the Public Library Inquiry. He was one of the pioneers in establishing the network of American information libraries overseas.

Dr. Heindel is the son of Mrs. Lella I. Heindel, now residing in Abbotstown, and brother of Granville P. Heindel, Hanover. He attended Gettysburg college.

1,500 Kiddies Given Presents By Firemen

Fifteen hundred boxes of candy and as many oranges were distributed Wednesday evening by the Gettysburg fire company at the annual Christmas party held by the firemen for the town's kiddies at the engine house.

Mervin Crouse and George Burger were "Santa's helpers" for the occasion and found themselves busy for well over an hour in distributing the gifts. The fire house was decorated for the occasion with a tree and other holiday trim.

Wednesday afternoon the firemen distributed candy to the county home and to the hospital.

ALLISON CHOR OF CARLISLE TO SING ON SUNDAY

The 30-voice choir of the Allison Memorial Methodist church of Carlisle will sing Handel's "Messiah" on the Methodist-Presbyterian Sunday Evening Hour in the Methodist church here at 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon.

The great Handel masterpiece has been sung annually by the Allison Memorial choir at Christmas time and its annual rendition by that group has become a Carlisle holiday institution.

Mrs. Leslie M. Karper, the church's minister of music, will direct the choir.

"The Messiah," based on Scriptural texts, was composed in 23 days. Its first presentation was in Dublin, Ireland, in 1742. The performance was for the benefit of a charitable institution, the composer having regarded the oratorio as too sacred to be performed for private profit. Handel felt that it should not merely entertain people, it should make them better. One of its greatest passages is the Hallelujah Chorus, which so moved Handel while he composed it that he exclaimed "I did think I did see all heaven before me, and the great God Himself."

The custom of the audience standing during the singing of the "Hallelujah Chorus" originated with King George III at its first London performance. It is related that "the audience were exceedingly struck and affected and when the chorus struck up 'For the Lord God Omnipotent' they were so transported that they all together, with the king, started up and remained standing 'til the chorus ended."

Bonuses Presented To Bream Employees

Fourteen employees of the Glenn L. Bream Used Car market who have worked there a year were presented with leather monogrammed pocket-books and a cash bonus and Christmas gift of $125 each at the annual Christmas party of the group held Wednesday afternoon at the offices in the garage. Three who had worked there less than a year received smaller cash gifts, proportionate to the length of their employment.

Besides the regular cash bonus, a family membership in the Gettysburg Country Club was presented to Paul R. Knox, assistant manager and Arthur R. Buehler, service manager.

Owner Glenn L. Bream thanked the group for their faithfulness during the year and went over plans for a bigger year in 1948. Present plans call for the organization to continue full garage service seven days and five nights a week, with no Saturday or Sunday night service, Bream said.

The employees presented Mr. Bream with two large red leather office chairs. Refreshments were served in the temporary garage cafeteria.

CARRIER CREW GETS CITATION

A former member of the crew of the U.S.S. Lunga Point, David A. Hughes, West Middle street, has been notified by Secretary of the Navy John L. Sullivan, that the ship and its attached air squadrons have been awarded the Presidential unit citation.

Hughes, an aerographer, second class, served on the U.S.S. Lunga Point from the time of its commission in May of 1944 until his discharge in February, 1946.

The citation is for the part taken by the aircraft carrier off Leyte from November 14-23, 1944; off Luzon from January 4-18, 1945; off Iwo Jima, February 16 to March 8, 1945; Okinawa Gunto, March 25 to April 26, 1945; and Okinawa Gunto, May 19 to June 6, 1945, and as part of the Third fleet operations against Japan from July 10-15, 1945.

COUPLE IS WED CHRISTMAS EVE IN BENDERSVILLE

Miss Helen Ruth McCauslin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph B. McCauslin, Quaker Valley, became the bride of Clyde Henderson Baker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Baker, Gettysburg R. 3, in a candlelight wedding ceremony in the Bendersville Methodist church Christmas Eve at 6:30 o'clock.

The single ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Richard K. Tittley, the pastor.

Preceding the ceremony Miss Dorothy Smith, pianist, played "White Orchid," "I Have But One Heart" and "Wedding March" from "Lohengrin." Charles Yost, Biglerville, accompanied by his wife, sang "I Love You Truly" and "At Dawning."

Given By Father

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a white winter wool dress with white and gold accessories. She carried a colonial bouquet of white rosebuds, white chrysanthemums and baby's breath.

Miss Carolyn Kepner, Orrtanna, the maid of honor, wore a pale yellow dress with black accessories and wore a corsage of yellow rosebuds, chrysanthemums and baby's breath.

Kenneth Deardorff, Orrtanna, was the best man. The ushers were Harold McCauslin, brother of the bride, and Paul Baker, brother of the bridegroom.

Reception Follows

The bride's mother wore a black dress with pink and blue accessories. The bridegroom's mother wore a black dress with brown accessories. Both wore corsages of white gardenias.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the Bendersville community hall for 190 guests. A three-tier wedding cake, topped by a miniature bride and groom, featured the wedding table which was decorated with white candles and pine. Serving as hostesses were Miss Verna McGlaughlin, Mrs. Paul Baker, Miss Dorothy McCauslin and Miss Esther Wilson.

Following the reception the couple left on a wedding trip of unannounced destination.

To Live In Biglerville

The bride is a graduate of York high school and the Joyce Art and Beauty Culture college, York. She is owner and operator of Helen's Beauty shop, Biglerville.

Mr. Baker graduated from Fairfield high school and is now employed by the Orrtanna Canning company.

Upon their return from the wedding trip the couple will reside in a newly furnished apartment in Biglerville.

MANY PRESENTS FOR HOSPITAL

Walter R. Doud, administrator at the Warner hospital, "gratefully acknowledged" today many gifts to the hospital, its patients and staffs that were received over Christmas.

The list of donations included: Six poinsettias from the Gettysburg Rotary club.

Fifty miniature poinsettias from Cremer, the florist in Hanover, and one large poinsettia for the lobby.

An orange and a box of candy from the Gettysburg Fire company for each patient and each employee at the hospital.

A Christmas tree and begonia plants for each patient by the Hospital Auxiliary.

Three large boxes of candy for the nurses from the Peoples Drug store.

Favors for patients' trays from the local Girl Scouts and Brownies.

Favors for patients' trays from the East Berlin high school.

Two radios from the Cessna Bible class of the Methodist church with one to be used in the men's and the other in the women's wards.

Gifts from the Red Cross for two children among the approximately 35 patients there for Christmas.

A large poinsettia for the office on each floor of the Musselman annex.

A large poinsettia for the office from the Wayside flower shop.

Mrs. Hunt's Mother Injured In Crash

Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Gemmill, York, were injured Christmas Eve in an auto accident in York. Mrs. Gemmill was cut about the face and scalp by flying glass and Mr. Gemmill suffered a bruise of the nose. Following a collision at an intersection with another car the Gemmill vehicle went out of control and struck a utility pole. Damage to the Gemmill vehicle was estimated at $250. Mrs. Gemmill is the mother of Mrs. Robert Hunt, East High street. The Gemmills were en route to Gettysburg when the accident occurred. They arrived later and spent Christmas here.

Savage Typhoon Sweeps Philippines; 56 Dead Or Lost

Manila, Dec. 26 (AP)—A savage typhoon swept the Philippines today, leaving at least 56 persons dead or unaccounted for—46 of them from the Danish motorship Kina, which sank off Samar.

Five other ships were damaged. 70 per cent of the historic city of Tacloban was reported wiped out by storm-whipped fire, and portions of Manila were hard hit.

The latest official death toll in Manila and nearby Quezon City was five, and the Red Cross reported five persons missing in Laguna Province.

President Roxas declared an emergency holiday to permit all energies to be devoted to recovery as the storm—the worst December typhoon to hit the Philippines in 29 years—swept over the China Sea toward Hainan.

The typhoon stripped the last vestige of Christmas gaiety from the Philippines and left residents gasping from the shock of the islands' fifth and most violent storm in two months.

The Danish Motorship Kina, bound from Tokyo to Europe with a crew of 36 and 15 passengers, was reported a "total loss" in the Samar Sea.

The 9,823 ton vessel of the Danish East Asiatic lines was driven aground. Its loss was reported by the Norwegian motor vessel Samuel Bakke, which was grounded itself but managed to pull free.

The Bakke radioed that it had picked up five survivors, all from the Kina's crew. It added there were "more survivors," but did not say whether they were passengers. The Kina crashed on Rocky Camandag Island, about five miles off the coast of Samar Island and between Samar and the northwest tip of Leyte.

The steamship line reported the passenger list included three Americans, WACS, three married couples and three children.

ROTARY PLANS PARTY

The Gettysburg Rotary club will exchange gifts Monday evening at a New Year's party to be held at the YWCA at 6 o'clock.

Dr. H. C. Alleman Publishes Book, "Personal Religion"

A series of chapel talks given at Gettysburg college by Dr. Herbert C. Alleman, former professor of Hebrew, Old Testament and Theology at the Gettysburg Lutheran Theological seminary, have been collected and published by the Muhlenberg Press, Philadelphia, under the title, "Personal Religion."

In his book Dr. Alleman reads the mind of the skeptic and cautions the self-satisfied on the subject. "It is fashionable to be individual in a social sense," says the book's cover comment by the publishers. "We like things 'personalized' for us. . . but modern man has failed to personalize his soul, or to give it individual appraisal measured in terms of his own religious conviction and creed. Religion is caught in the whirl and swirl of a corporate society."

"In our attempt to become socially adjusted we lack moral principle. This is the charge that Dr. Alleman lays before the churchman who thinks of his religion as a social fellowship rather than a personal relationship with his God. The whole subject of personal religion is presented with freeness and simplicity and frankness by Dr. Alleman. 'Personal Religion' gives chapter by chapter consideration to such subjects as speech and silence, prayer, personal conduct, conscience, stewardship, conviction, cheer, temptation, character, the church, the Bible, Our Leader, the sacraments and eternal life."

The publishers commend Dr. Alleman's book to the Christian "who senses the aloofness of his soul from his God. It is commended even more to those who do not sense that such an aloofness exists."

Dr. Alleman is considered one of the most eminent Bible scholars of the present day. He is a native of Pennsylvania and holds D.D. degrees from Gettysburg college, Temple university and an LL.D. degree from Franklin and Marshall college. He became professor emeritus at the seminary in 1940. He resides at Silver Spring, Md.

MANY ACCIDENT CASES TREATED OVER CHRISTMAS

William Weishaar, Keymar, Md., was admitted as a patient in the ambulance Christmas Day following an accident in which he suffered a fractured kneecap, contusions and abrasions. He is reported to have been blinded by the lights of an approaching car which resulted in the collision.

John Hann, Gettysburg R. 1, a truck driver for H. Earl Pitzer, Aspers, was treated at the Warner hospital Thursday afternoon for a deep wound of his left hand, injured by a truck door.

Earl Sponseller, East Berlin R. 1, received treatment Wednesday evening for an injury to his right knee sustained while loading a hog on a truck.

Leroy Rudisill, 20, Gettysburg R. 5, was treated for scratches and brush burns of the right arm and a small laceration of the nose. He was injured early Christmas morning when he apparently fell asleep and his car overturned as he was returning. (Continued on page 2)

LOCAL WOMAN WED XMAS EVE

Hilda King Gleim, 303 Baltimore street, and Carl Newman, 232 South Queen street, York, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Newman, of Sweden, were united in marriage Christmas eve at 8 o'clock in the parsonage of Trinity Evangelical Reformed church here. The double ring ceremony was performed before a candle-lit fireplace by the Rev. Dr. Howard S. Fox, pastor of the church.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Mayhall, Gettysburg, friends of the bride, were the attendants.

The bride wore a winter shade of green dress with tan and black accessories and wore a corsage of pink rosebuds. The matron of honor was attired in a pea green shade of dress with gold accessories and wore a corsage of yellow rosebuds.

Mrs. Newman is an employee of the Ren and Derick drug store here while the bridegroom is an employee of the Baltimore Construction company of York. For the present they reside at the home of the bride on Baltimore street.

Christmas Day a wedding breakfast was served at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Small, Gettysburg, for friends of the bridal party. A three-tier wedding cake with a miniature bride and groom was a feature of the breakfast table. Later a turkey dinner was served the bridal party at the Homestead Inn, York, after which the couple left on a short wedding trip.

"The publishers commend Dr. Alleman's book to the Christian 'who senses the aloofness of his soul from his God. It is commended even more to those who do not sense that such an aloofness exists.'"

Dr. Alleman is considered one of the most eminent Bible scholars of the present day. He is a native of Pennsylvania and holds D.D. degrees from Gettysburg college, Temple university and an LL.D. degree from Franklin and Marshall college. He became professor emeritus at the seminary in 1940. He resides at Silver Spring, Md.

The first of the services is scheduled for this evening at 7:30 o'clock. Three services will be held on Sunday, one in the morning at 10:30 o'clock, another in the afternoon at 2 o'clock. (Continued on page 2)

Refuses To Heed Advice; Is Jailed

It was Louis Metz' own fault that he spent part of Christmas Eve in the Adams county jail, according to borough police, who arrested the Orrtanna man Wednesday night on a disorderly conduct charge.

Metz, they said, created a disturbance on Chambersburg street. Police, loath to arrest him because of Christmas, asked a friend of Metz to take him home. This the friend agreed to do, but Metz, police said, refused to go and threatened with a piece of metal in his hand anyone who approached him.

Police then arrested him and took him to jail. He was arraigned Christmas morning before Justice of the Peace Robert P. Snyder, who also felt the Christmas urge, and in the spirit of the day gave Metz until Saturday to pay a $2 fine and costs.

PRESENTS MADE XMAS BRIGHTER FOR FAMILY OF 11

Christmas was a little brighter and a little happier in a two-room shack in the hills back of Blue Ridge Summit Thursday because of the generosity of several Gettysburg residents and others who shared with the family a part of their own blessings and Christmas bounty.

Friends and neighbors of the family revealed Wednesday that the father, mother and nine children, were desperately in need of assistance. The appeal met an instant response.

Members of the Gettysburg Typographical Union, employed at The Gettysburg Times, and other employees of the newspaper, sent toys, food, clothing and cash, totaling more than $50 worth Wednesday afternoon.

The father is partially paralyzed and his wife is ill. A 16-year-old boy is the only member of the family able to work, and his employment is by no means steady or highly remunerative because of his age and size. There are two sets of twins in the family, two girls one year, and two other 12-year-old girls.

As the bearers of the gifts Wednesday afternoon found the home and took their baskets of groceries, their boxes of clothing and the cash in the front door, they found that Christmas was there ahead of them. (Continued on page 2)

MRS. WEAVER DIES XMAS DAY

Mrs. Mary Ann Weaver, 76, 63 West Middle street, widow of William F. Weaver, died at the Warner hospital Thursday morning at 9:10 o'clock from the effects of a stroke suffered 10 days ago.

She was a native of Adams county, a daughter of the late Plus and Mary (Masenheimer) Althoff, and was the last of her family. Her husband died in 1939.

Mrs. Weaver was a member of St. Francis Xavier Catholic church and the Auxiliary No. 73, of the Sons of Union Veterans.

Surviving are a daughter, Mrs. J. E. Slade, Allentown, and two grandsons, Joseph A. of the Marine Corps, and William F., at home.

Funeral services Monday morning at 8:30 o'clock from the Bender funeral home with a high requiem mass at St. Francis church at 9 o'clock conducted by the Rev. Mark E. Stock. Interment in the church cemetery. Friends may call at the funeral home Sunday evening.

Pays $25 Fine For Overloaded Truck

Gerald Seigman, Glen Rock, Pa., paid a fine of $25 and costs to Justice of the Peace Claude Straley, New Oxford, on a charge of operating an overloaded truck, state police at the Gettysburg sub-station, who filed the charge, said today.

William Holkamp, Washington, D. C., paid $10 and costs to Justice of the Peace F. E. Coulson, York Springs, on a speeding charge.

A ten-day notice will be sent by Justice of the Peace John H. Basehore to Walter C. Kuhn, Gettysburg R. 5, on a charge of speeding laid by borough police.

Birth Announcements

A daughter was born Wednesday to Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bennett, Gettysburg R. 5, at the Hanover General hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Kelly, Emmitsburg, announce the birth of a son at the Warner hospital on Christmas evening.

GIVEN PROMOTION
The Gettysburg Times today announced the appointment of Hugh C. McIlhenny to assistant editor in addition to his regular duties as City Editor, a post he has held for the past several years.

STATE, LOCAL POLICE PROBE YULE MISHAPS

State and borough police today reported seven accidents investigated over the holiday, beginning with Wednesday afternoon. There were no fatalities but only minor injuries, according to their reports.

At 1:10 p. m., Wednesday afternoon a car operated by J. Clair Butler, Aspers R. 1, was sideswiped a mile north of Gettysburg on the Biglerville road by another car which failed to stop, according to state police. Damage was placed at $60 to the Butler car. Investigation is being continued.

An automobile driven by G. G. Shank, Franklinton, Pa., ran into the rear of the car of Gerald Mulderig, Jersey Shore, Pa., a half mile south of Dillsburg on the Harrisburg road, at 4:15 p. m., Wednesday, another state police report said.

Pays $10 Fine

Mulderig, police said, was following another car which slowed to make a turn. Mulderig jammed on his brakes and Shank ran into him, the report said. Damage to Shank's car was estimated at $150 and to the Mulderig car at $50.

Mulderig was arrested by state police on a charge of following too close, and paid a fine of $10 and costs to Justice of the Peace George Brandt, Dillsburg.

EMANUEL BAKER DIES XMAS EVE

Emanuel J. Baker, 79, died at his home in Buchanan Valley, Wednesday evening at 9:30 o'clock from a complication of diseases. He was in ill health nine years and was bedfast two months.

He was born and lived in Adams county all of his life with the exception of two months spent in the west. He was the last of the family of the late Andrew and Rebecca (Cardoff) Baker. Mr. Baker was a member of St. Ignatius Catholic church. He was a farmer and was also in the sawmill business.

Surviving are his widow, the former Mae E. Holt, to whom he was married 53 years; nine children, Lloyd F., Orrtanna R. D.; Mrs. Howard Johns, Gettysburg; Mrs. George Lohs, Biglerville; Mrs. Harry Sumpman, York; Paul, York; Earl, York R. 1; Verne, York; Mrs. George Roth, York, and Dale, at home; 38 grandchildren and 14 great-grandchildren.

Funeral services Monday morning at 9 o'clock with a high requiem mass at St. Ignatius church conducted by the Rev. Louis Yeager. Interment in the church cemetery. Friends may call at the Bender funeral home Sunday evening.

PLAN TO LIST COMMISSIONERS

The Adams county board of commissioners Wednesday completed arrangements for the printing of the list of commissioners from the time the county was founded in 1800 up to and including the board that will take office in January.

Payment for the printing is being made by the commissioners themselves, as a public service, it was announced, rather than at public expense. A framed copy of the list is to be placed at the court house. Members of the board are George P. Taylor, president; J. Arthur Boyd and Quintin D. Rebert.

The commissioners today received the November report on the Child Welfare services in the county. The report shows 96 children under the care of the services with 56 families represented as of November 30. During November, one child was discharged from care of the service and 11 applications for care were received. Ten of those cases are pending and one was dropped. Twenty-four of the children are in custody of their parents, four with relatives; 59 in other foster homes, eight in institutions and one is receiving other care.

In four of the cases the youngsters are cared for free of charge in foster homes in return for the work they are able to do about the place.

FILE RIGHTS OF WAY

Six rights of way for the lines of the Metropolitan Edison company were filed today with the Adams county register and recorder. The rights are over the following properties: Miller Chemical and Fertilizer Corporation, Conewago township; Merle R. Bittle, and Lawrence B. Sheppard, Mount Pleasant township; James M. Landis, John M. Bennett and Russell M. Glenn, Hamiltontown township.

Greek Rebels Open New War To Strengthen Red Holdings

Athens, Dec. 26 (AP)—Guerrilla forces opened heavy attacks near the Albanian border today in what military experts said was an attempt to expand territorial holdings for the newly proclaimed Communist state within northern Greece.

More than 500 persons have been arrested by Greek authorities in the Athens area since the proclamation of the state by Gen. Markos Vafiades, leader of the anti-government Communist forces in the northern fighting zones.

The guerrillas attacked 1,500 strong south of Ioannina and sliced Greek Army supply lines to Epirus.

Two guerrilla brigades and two additional battalions launched a heavy attack yesterday at Konitsa, over the assault with a heavy barrage of mortar and artillery fire, an Army communiqué said they were held back with "very heavy losses."

Fight Army Troops

Forty miles to the west, at Philites, a fierce action was reported under way today between a "strong force" of guerrillas and Army troops. Reports on the action were sketchy. Press reports said a plane with Yugoslav air force markings, reconnoitering over the area, was driven off by Greek fighters.

Greek Army reinforcements were being rushed to defense points in the fighting zones.

War Minister George Stratos flew to Konitsa, only a few miles from the Albanian border, to take personal charge of the operations.

An official announcement said the bulk of the attacking force came from Albania, while the remainder was made up of small guerrilla bands from the surrounding hills.

By 3 p. m., yesterday afternoon the attackers had dropped 250 shells into Konitsa. The brigadier commanding the Konitsa garrison was among those wounded. The Army said that although the garrison was taken by surprise, not one attacker set foot in the town.

Seek Red Leader

Another guerrilla force simultaneously attacked the Bourazani bridge, northwest of Konitsa, and took it. The bridge has considerable strategic importance.

Other Army units, meanwhile, continued their search for the headquarters of Gen. Markos Vafiades, the leader of anti-government forces in northern Greece, who Wednesday announced the creation of an independent Communist state in the fighting zone.

Greek forces, who have searched diligently for the past 72 hours, confess they are still in the dark as to the location of Markos' headquarters.

Army leaders say they wish the 41-year-old Communist "general" would define his free territory within Greek borders so they could get at him. Military officials assert that Markos could not hold any given area for 48 hours.

Shoe Firm Gives Hanover $100,000

The Hanover Shoe, Inc., Wednesday morning presented the Hanover school board with a check for $100,000 to be used toward promotion of the physical education and recreation program of the district.

Lawrence B. Sheppard, president of the school board, and who is also president and general manager of the Hanover Shoe, Inc., presented the check to Guy R. Goodfellow, vice president of the board.

The contribution was placed in a fund for developing and maintaining the Sheppard-Myers athletic field at Hanover. The site for the field was presented to the school system by the Hanover Shoe farms in November and at that time $30,000 was given by the Clinton N. Myers Foundation and the Lawrence B. Sheppard Foundation toward the field. The Hanover Elks have also pledged $5,000 to the fund, giving the first of five annual contributions of $1,000 this month.

U. S. milk production increased from about 20,841,000 quarts in 1939 to about 55,688,000 quarts in 1946.

Commercial scale production of dry ice, or solid carbon dioxide, began in 1925.

Deputy Held For Shooting Policeman

Lebanon, Ohio, Dec. 26 (AP)—George Robertson, 35, deputy marshal at nearby South Lebanon, today was charged with shooting to kill the community's police chief, George Girtin, 36.

Gerald W. Couden, Warren county sheriff, said the shooting occurred early yesterday as Robertson and Girtin prepared to search the automobile of a man arrested for intoxication.

The sheriff said Robertson had made an oral statement that he shot his superior officer but had declined to describe the motive.

Girtin, who is in serious condition at Middletown hospital in neighboring Butler county, was quoted by Couden as saying Robertson declared: "You can't do that," as the chief began searching the car and then fired point-blank into his face.

The shot, from a .38 caliber revolver, struck Girtin in the upper lip.

STORM BALKS RESCUE TRIES

Westover Field, Mass., Dec. 26 (AP)—Heavy snow whipped by whistling winds today balked attempts to rescue nine American airmen marooned on dreary ice-covered "Lake Astray" in the heart of Labrador's wilderness.

Cheerful over being alive despite their plight, the stranded men accepted in good spirits a radioed report they would have to spend another night—their third—outdoors in 18-below zero temperatures.

Emergency supplies—blankets, food, heavy clothing and axes for wood-chopping—were dropped to them from the air. It took 24 hours to locate the grounded flying fortress 275 miles northwest of Goose Bay.

COUPLE MARKS ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. Edward S. Shriver, 15 West King street, Littlestown, quietly observed their 50th wedding anniversary on December 22 when they were visited by their friends and neighbors and received their good wishes. On Christmas Day, they had their seven children and their families with them for a more formal celebration of this great milestone.

The anniversary meal consisted of a turkey dinner and a two-tiered wedding cake decorated with roses-buds. Their children presented them with many gifts among which was a basket of yellow chrysanthemums. After the dinner, pictures of the couple were taken by the children.

Mrs. Shriver was the former Minnie Belle Snyder, daughter of the late Edmund and Agnes Miller Snyder. Mr. Shriver is a son of the late George I. and Naomi Clark Shriver. They were married December 22, 1897, by the late Rev. Dr. F. S. Lindaman at the home of the bride's parents in Mt. Joy township. They are the parents of seven children all of whom are living: Pauline (Mrs. John C. Meyers) of Baltimore; George Ralph of York; Herbert, New Oxford, R. D.; Harry C. Glenn K. and Kermit S., all of Bethesda, Md., and Fred, of Hanover. There are 11 grandchildren and four great-grandchildren. All the children, their wives and husbands, as well as all the grandchildren and great-grandchildren, making a total number of 35 were present.

STIMSON URGED INVASION IN '43

New York, Dec. 26 (AP)—Former Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson in his wartime biography, "on active service," wrote that if he or George Marshall had been the American commander-in-chief "the invasion of France would have been launched in 1943, one year earlier than it actually occurred."

"Would the war have been ended sooner?" he conjectured. "This is a problem in a dozen unknowns. No certain answer is possible, and the matter is here left open."

But Stimson declared that President Roosevelt's decision to land an Allied force in North Africa in the fall of 1942 was disapproved at the time both by Stimson and the American War department staff.

The first installment of his biography written in collaboration with McGeorge Bundy of Harvard university, appears in the January issue of the Ladies' Home Journal.

Describing in detail the behind-the-scenes maneuvering that forced postponement of operation Bolero, the proposed Normandy landing, in favor of operation Torch, the assault on North Africa, Stimson said:

"The Torch decision was the result of two absolutely definite and final rulings, one by the British, and the other by the President (Roosevelt). Mr. Churchill and his advisers categorically refused to accept the notion of a cross-channel invasion in 1942. Mr. Roosevelt categorically insisted that there must be some operation in 1942. The only operation that satisfied both of these conditions was Torch."

in the only way the family could afford to observe it.

There was a small Christmas tree cut in the woods nearby, meagerly decorated with three or four colored balls and scraps of colored paper. A small sprig of evergreen had been hung outside on the door.

Eyes of the children grew big and round as they glimpsed the food and gifts. The parents were profuse in their gratitude for the holiday remembrances brought them.

State College, Pa., Dec. 26 (AP)—Elementary school buildings with cheerful wall colors and movable seats to replace structure designed and built "as a monument to the school board" are urged by a Pennsylvania State college assistant professor of architecture.

"School design in this country has lagged far behind progress made in teaching," said F. C. Salmon yesterday. "And the cost for a well-planned elementary school often is less than the cost for a poorly designed building."

4 COMMUNIONS

NITTANY LIONS EXPECTING AIR OFFENSE BY SMU

By WILBUR MARTIN

Dallas, Tex. Dec. 26 (P)—Southern Methodist university, its deadly passing attack an ace-in-the-hole during regular season play, may dust off an "aerial circus" for the Cotton Bowl here New Year's Day.

Penn State Coach Bob Higgins expects it. And, statistically, it's the only chance for the Mustangs.

The Nittany Lions boast a terrific paper edge over Southern Methodist, both in defense and offense. Only in the air have the unbeaten, onced-tied Mustangs an edge.

Higgins sent his undefeated, untied eastern champions through a short scrimmage yesterday to "sharpen" the offense that rolled up more than 3,000 yards. Then he indicated the next five days would be devoted almost exclusively to pass defense.

Not Spectacular
The Mustangs haven't a spectacular aerial record. On 134 attempted passes, 74 were completed for 921 yards. But most of them paid off.

Passing was the UCLA, Texas and Texas A&M games for the Mustangs, salvaged a tie with Texas Christian and made the Baylor score respectable.

In the only game of the season in which Matty Bell's sharpshooters really cut loose, the result was amazing. Against Texas A&M Coach Walker completed two of two and Gilbert Johnson connected on 14 of 16 efforts.

The Mustangs' rushing record is pretty good, but pales beside that of Penn State. The Lions rolled up 2,713 yards on the ground, while holding opponents to a net of 17—a new record. In total defense, Penn State had 3,275 yards against 767 for nine foes.

EAGLES, CARDS PLAY FOR TITLE

Philadelphia, Dec. 26 (P)—The Philadelphia Eagles have a mental edge for Sunday's National Football league championship game with the Chicago Cardinals that may spell trouble for the heavily favored western division champs.

The Eagles were to work only a half hour or so at Shibe Park on Christmas day but instead they drilled more than two hours because the squad was not willing to quit.

"I think they would have worked out all day, Christmas or not, if I hadn't called things off," said Coach Earle (Greasy) Neale.

"Earlier in the week," he added, "I worried a little that they wouldn't be as much 'up' mentally as they were for the last two games (when they defeated Green Bay and Pittsburgh). It's practically impossible for a group to avoid a letdown in three straight games that mean everything. But this gang has done it."

With the brand of football displayed in the last two games, Neale says the Eagles won't be chased out of the park by the Cardinals or anybody else. In fact, line coach John Kellison thought the Eagles line might play the Cards right out of their reputations in the game at Comiskey Park.

Providence Reds Stretch Loop Lead

(By The Associated Press)

The Providence Reds are threatening to make a runaway of the Eastern division in the American hockey league.

The Rhode Islanders stretched their lead to nine points by defeating the Buffalo Bisons, 6-3, at Providence. Tail-enders came to life in the other two games on schedule.

The St. Louis Flyers, bringing up the rear in the western race, downed the Hershey Bears at Hershey, 8-4. The Springfield Indians, last in the eastern standings, eked out a 4-3 verdict over New Haven at New Haven.

In beating Buffalo before a home crowd of 6,004, the Providence Reds avenged the only mar on their home record this season. In 17 games at home their only loss has been an upset at the hands of the Bisons. Harvey Fraser was the star for the Reds, with two goals.

Springfield scored two goals within a space of 33 seconds while their opponents were short-handed in squeezing past New Haven, 4-3.

Jack Kramer Will Make Pro Debut

New York, Dec. 26 (P)—Jack Kramer begins cashing in on the glory he won while collecting all the major tennis titles of the world when he makes his professional debut at Madison Square Garden tonight against Bobby Riggs, king of the pros for the past two years.

The match, destined to answer the long-standing question whether the world's best amateur can whip the best of the professionals, launches a nationwide tour.

Two other players of international reputation — Australian Champion Dinny Pails and Francisco (Pancho) Segura, an Ecuadorian who has done most of his playing in the United States — also will be introduced to the professional game tonight.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, Dec. 26 (P)—The University of Kentucky, which has had quite a bit to do with the development of big-time basketball, may be the pioneer in reversing the trend.

Kentucky is building a new field house, with a 12,000 seating capacity, and hopes to play in it before the end of the 1948-49 season.

When that is completed, says Coach Adolph Rupp, the Wildcats likely will revert to 22-game schedules instead of the more than 30 they now play.

"We have to play longer schedules now so all the students can see enough games," Rupp explains. "But we don't play as good basketball. I can't go back to fundamentals, as I should sometimes, and drill the boys on shooting and cutting and guarding. I have to prepare for De Paul or Notre Dame or (with a useful grimace) Temple."

The Kentucky basketballers flew back from here to Lexington for the first Christmas holiday a Kentucky team has taken in 18 years.

When they resume play they'll face one ten-day stretch in which they meet DePaul, Notre Dame, Alabama, Washington of St. Louis and Vanderbilt—all away from home.

TEXAS RULES

Communique from Arlie Dorrell, former lightweight welterweight movie actor and man about the United States (especially Texas): "I have a Texas referee's license now and the first fight I worked was a state championship affair. In the second I was the third man to Buddy Garcia and Henry Malcher. The oddity is that all three of us are being managed—or have been managed—by 'Governor' Eddie Walker."

2,953 RETIRED OFFICERS WILL BE EXAMINED

Washington, Dec. 26 (P)—Questionnaires are on the way today to 2,953 army and navy officers asking details about the disabilities for which they were retired with tax-free incomes.

A House Armed Services subcommittee investigating disability retirements started its first mailing to a list of former officers retired with the rank of colonel—or its naval equivalent of captain—and above.

Chairman Elston (R-Ohio) has told reporters the present retirement system "is manifestly unfair" and that his committee's study "will find out all we can about the inequities of the regulations."

Officers retired for disabilities receive three-quarters of the pay for the rank at which they retired. The money is income tax exempt.

May Quiz Majors

A clerk said the committee has requested more information from the army and navy, including how long the officer held his retirement grade before he was retired.

"We think that is one of the most significant facts we can have on any disability retirement case," he said. Subsequent mailings may go as low as the rank of major, and its equivalent, "or perhaps all the way to the bottom," the clerk added.

Elston has told reporters the committee is not interested in officers retired because of battle wounds.

The questionnaire includes these questions:

"1. Did you perform active service during any part of World War II as the result of a waiver of your present disability?"

"2. Have you undergone medical examination or treatment since retirement, either privately or officially, which examination or treatment was occasioned as a direct re-

BOWL GAMES WILL ATTRACT HALF MILLION

By WILLIAM GRIMSLEY

New York, Dec. 26 (P)—The football bowls have grown into an expansive, $2,000,000 business, but the older, established events still carry the big part of the load.

An Associated Press survey shows that sponsors of the 16 remaining post-season gridiron parties are looking for a total turnout of around 534,000 customers who will toss approximately $2,097,000 into the various tills.

But more than half the fans — 329,200 — are expected to attend the "big five" of New Year's day extravaganzas — the Rose, Sugar, Orange and Cotton bowls and the East-West Shrine game. These attractions, too, are slated to get about two-thirds of the cash.

Rose Bowl Leads

Here are the bowl games, with expected attendance (in parenthesis) and receipts:

Rose Bowl at Pasadena — Michigan vs. Southern California (93,000) $400,000.

Sugar Bowl at New Orleans — Texas vs. Alabama (72,000) $360,000.

Orange Bowl at Miami — Kansas vs. Georgia Tech (58,700) $300,000.

Cotton Bowl at Dallas — Southern Methodist vs. Penn State (45,000) $205,000.

Shrine All-Star at San Francisco — East Stars vs. West Stars (60,000) $200,000.

Dixie Bowl, Birmingham — William and Mary vs. Arkansas (35,000) $150,000.

Delta Bowl, Memphis — Mississippi vs. Texas Christian (28,800) $110,000.

Gator Bowl, Jacksonville, Fla. — Maryland vs. Georgia (22,300) $100,000.

One Bowl Saturday

X-North-South, Montgomery, Ala. — Southern Stars vs. Northern Stars (22,500) $60,000.

Sun Bowl, El Paso, Tex. — Texas Tech vs. Miami (O.) (18,000) $50,000.

Salad Bowl, Phoenix, Ariz. — North Texas State vs. Nevada (17,000) $33,000.

Cigar Bowl, Tampa, Fla. — Westchester (Pa.) Teachers vs. Missouri Valley (16,700) $32,000.

Harbor Bowl, San Diego, Calif. — San Diego State vs. Hardin-Simmons (18,000) $27,000.

Pineapple Bowl, Honolulu — Hawaii vs. Redlands (15,000) $25,000.

Raisin Bowl, Fresno, Calif. — College of Pacific vs. Wichita (15,000) $25,000.

Tangerine Bowl, Orlando, Fla. — Catawba vs. Marshall (W. Va.) (10,000) $20,000.

American League Set Fielding Mark

Chicago, Dec. 26 (P)—The American league—highlighted by the Cleveland Indians making the fewest errors in one season in the history of the major leagues—established a new unit fielding record of 977 in 1947.

The old unit mark of 974 was set in 1946 by the National League. Cleveland committed only 104 errors in 157 games to eclipse the major league record of 112 miscues set three years ago by the St. Louis Cardinals of the National League.

Lou Boudreau, manager-shortstop of the Indians, paced his teammates by besting his old American league record at shortstop of 978 set in 1944. Lou missed only 14 times in 794 chances in 1947 to set a new mark of 982. He also figured in 120 double plays to lead that department.

After catching 147 games without an error—a major league record—Philadelphia's Warren (Buddy) Rosar finally miscued on one last May 20.

to the order, "for extraordinary heroism in action against Japanese forces in the air, ashore and afloat while operating in the most advanced areas." The citation stated that the air squadrons penetrated "enemy controlled waters to destroy hostile warships, aircraft, merchant shipping and shore installations despite frequent and sustained enemy air attacks." The ship itself, according to the citation, "defended herself against repeated Kamikaze attacks, destroying five suicide planes by her own gunfire and assisting the screen in the destruction of two others."

EX-GOVERNOR DIES

Berkeley, Calif., Dec. 26 (P)—Clement Calhoun Young, 78, former Governor of California, died last night. The state's 26th Governor, serving from January 4, 1927, to January 6, 1931, Young suffered a stroke Thanksgiving Day but had rallied and was returned home here after hospital treatment a week ago.

TOJO DECLARES JAPAN FOUGHT FOR EXISTENCE

Tokyo, Dec. 26 (P)—Hideki Tojo, premier of Japan at the time of Pearl Harbor, took the witness stand at the War Crimes trial today and defiantly declared, in a 65,000-word deposition, that Japan fought in self defense.

The voluminous statement, read by his attorney, Ichiro Kiyose, asserted that "Our decision to make war was made only as a last resort. A war of self-existence was our only alternative. We staked the fate of our country on that decision—and lost."

The 63-year-old defendant took full responsibility, as premier, for Japan's defeat, but he added: "Never at any time did I ever conceive that the waging of this war would or could be challenged by the victors as an international crime."

Tojo's appearance on the stand capped 19 months of rather dull testimony and documentary evidence seeking to prove that 25 Japanese political and military leaders conspired to wage aggressive warfare as early as 1929.

"Unfriendly" Attitude

His statement will require at least two days of steady reading. Then will come prosecution cross-examination—probably among the most searching in the history of jurisprudence.

Tojo professed to be unable to understand the U. S. position from beginning to end. He regarded U. S. policy in the far east as evidence of an increasing "unfriendly" attitude, and viewed American military preparations as a direct challenge to Japan.

As for the surprise attack on Pearl Harbor, Tojo's deposition maintained he trusted fellow defendant Shigenori Togo, then foreign minister, to deliver adequate advance notice.

"It was a matter of great regret to the Japanese government upon learning subsequently that the actual delivery of the note was delayed," he added.

THREATENS SIX THEN KILLS SELF

Philadelphia, Dec. 26 (P)—Six persons were held at shotgunpoint in their home on Christmas Eve by a 32-year-old man who shot and killed himself after waiting for a woman he said had rejected his marriage proposal. Patrolman Clark Cutter reported.

Cutter said he and three other policemen arrived at the suburban Abington Township home of William Lybrand early yesterday in time to witness the death of a man identified by the Policeman as Vaughan J. Templeman, an office building janitor.

Cutter said Lybrand told him Templeman announced he planned to wait for Caroline Curen, 37, Lybrand's sister-in-law.

In the room with Lybrand were his wife, Viola, 43; their children, William, Jr., 15, and Samuel, three, and Mrs. Lybrand's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Curen.

Eight hours later, Lybrand said, Templeman said he was going upstairs and while he was absent from the room for a few moments, Lybrand called police. Cutter and the three other policemen arrived as Templeman turned the shotgun on himself and pulled the trigger, Cutter said.

BURIAL DIRECTIONS

Discovered Too Late

Somerset, Pa., Dec. 26 (P)—Aughtier doubted today that Edward Hoover, 77-year-old recluse, will get his last wish—to be buried in a new suit and copper casket. His will was found too late.

Hoover, a onetime school teacher who lived in a shack alongside railroad tracks, died and was given an ordinary burial a month ago. Because of his frugal habits it was not suspected he had any means—but investigators finally unearthed a will disposing of a $3,500 estate.

The testament, scribbled in pencil on brown wrapping paper that ran five feet long, left six bequests to hospitals and welfare institutions. Although officials said there was little chance the body would be disinterred to grant Hoover's wish for a new suit and copper casket, there was one provision that wasn't too late. It asked a $1,000 monument for his grave.

HOT CHRISTMAS DAY

Los Angeles, Dec. 26 (P)—Yesterday was the second hottest Christmas Day in the history of the Los Angeles Weather Bureau. The maximum was 84 degrees, exceeded only by an 86 degree temperature on Christmas in 1914.

Cabinet May Have Woman: New York (AP)—An energetic, alert-looking woman with a flair for statistics may be the nation's first female cabinet member.

Widespread reports say that Miss Frances Perkins, industrial commissioner of New York state, may be chosen secretary of labor by President elect Roosevelt, although no announcements have been made.

Miss Perkins, 50, is the wife of Paul C. Wilson, but she has used her maiden name in her professional career. They have one daughter, Suzanna.

Roland Martin Will Train at Naval Post: Roland Martin, son of Mr.
and Mrs. Paul A. Martin, Lincoln avenue, has enlisted in the United States navy.

Martin will pursue a three months'
training course before beginning active duty.

Seek Stamp to Mark Conflict: A resolution endorsing the issuance of a stamp commemorating the 70th anniversary of the battle of Gettysburg was passed at the regular meeting of the Gettysburg Chamber of Commerce held in the Hotel Gettysburg annex Tuesday evening.

Election of the board of directors resulted in the following members being named:
Dr. Henry W. A. Hanson, E. V.
Bullett, Esq., Henry Scharf, E. W.
Thomas, D. J. Forney, J. W. Brehm,
William Allison, M. E. Blair and J. B.
Auman.

$447 Donated for Christmas Party:
The Gettysburg fire company's Christmas party fund went "over the top" with a total of $447.50 donated by Gettysburgians for the kiddies annual party held Friday evening in the fire engine house.

250 Attend Elks' Charity Dance:
Approximately 250 men and women attended the annual charity ball of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks lodge in the C. W. Epley recreation center, York street.

Bud Cudor's Pennsylvania Ramblers furnished a variety of musical selections for the dancing program.

Gift Shop to Close out Business:
The Gift Shop, Chambersburg street, will go out of business about the first of the year, C. Paul Cessna, proprietor, has announced.

Mr. Cessna said that the pressure of college affairs, where he is assistant professor of mathematics, and the small margin of profit upon which a gift shop operates influenced him to close out the business.

Local Girl Is Secretly Wed Last

Ethel Clapsaddle, daughter of Mr.
and Mrs. J. D. Clapsaddle, Baltimore pike, to Donald Paul Stephens, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Stephens, of Roaring Springs, was made Friday afternoon at a bridge luncheon in the Flora Dale tea room. Mrs. Clap-saddle and her daughter, Mrs. Donald P. Stephens, were the hostesses.

The young couple were married by the Rev. Mark Depp, pastor of the Columbia Road Methodist Episcopal church, Washington, D. C.
Mrs. Stephens has been teaching school since her marriage and Mr.
Stephens is pursuing a course in law at the University of Virginia. The couple will reside in Charlottesville,
Virginia, after the first of the year.

Today's Talk

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS
INDIVIDUAL SANCTITY

The breath of freedom is never snuffed out of the ether of this world. It has always been there, and always will be. Wars may come and wars may go, but there will still remain that item in man that revolts against tyranny and regimentation, against injustice and slavery.

Little by little the voice of freedom is advanced to some new corner of the globe, where it finds a hearing.
It has been said that there is a rebel in every man. The story of history has illustrated this again and again.
Man's inherent right is to be free,
and to own his individual sanctity.

Every human being should be free to choose his own way of life, and select his own sphere of influence, just so long as he does not encroach upon the same individual rights of his fellow man. We are here to work together, not to cause disunity and strife. Said W. MacNeille Dixon. "The inner truth is that every man is himself a creator, by birth and nature, an artist, an architect and fashioner of worlds."

It is for this that the free nations of the world have fought two tragic wars—and the end is not yet.
But the struggle will go on. There was vision to the statement of Woodrow Wilson that "the world must be made safe for democracy."
Democracy, however, is a much abused word. Stalin talks about democracy! One has to be free before he can be democratic.

It is essential that we have something worth living for, before we can be convinced that it is worth dying for. Once freedom's breath has been inhaled, all other air is a contamination. And he who would contaminate it is an enemy to all mankind.

Man must be free to make his choice of a way of life. Otherwise he remains a slave, his physical life that of a jail, though his mind may be free. But who can hope for happiness thus? The individual's very birthright is insulted. The free man must have a range of vision. His ideas and ideals must have their free function. His individual sanctity must be respected. Else, what then is life—or heaven, for?

Tomorrow Mr. Adams will talk on the subject: "Influence"

Just Folks

The Poet of the People
By EDGAR A. GUEST

DAY AFTER
I believed them yesterday;
Tried to prove their statement
true.

Who to grandpas often say:
Age is just a point of view.
I was up at dawn to share
Every minute of delight.

Now, I've aches and pains to bear
And I'm told: "It serves you right!"

If the thought could make it so,
I was just as young as they.
Up and at it I would go
All the merry Christmas Day.
Did my best to keep their pace,
But the truth I soon found out:
Age with childhood cannot race.
Little legs are much too stout.

"Serves you right!" the women say.
"You should learn to be your age.
In the games the children play Grandpas cannot long engage."
But, when Christmas comes again,
If the Lord shall leave me here,
I will gladly risk the pain
For the fun I had this year!

GOD'S ETERNAL LESSON
By Rev. Howard R. Gold, D.D.
Margaret C. Gold

Revelation 21:1-7, 22-27
Memory selection: Thy kingdom is an everlasting kingdom, and thy dominion endureth throughout all generations. Psalm 145:13.

This lesson is a glorious climax following upon the coming of Jesus Christ, the Messenger of Peace.
Taken from the book of Revelation
it is the vision of the ideal church, symbolized by the Church as the bride of Christ, the new Jerusalem.
Writing in glowing, mystic terms,
John describes how an angel took
him into a high mountain and there
showed him a "new heaven and a new earth." John's vision serves as a basis for a popular conception of heaven, but John does not mean that this Holy City is heaven. It is only a picture of an ideal city and not that of eternity and the final home of the blessed.

The world must learn to follow Christ and practise in its living the spiritual truths He taught before it can enter the pearly gates of the new Jerusalem. God is ruler of life and his Word is from the beginning to the end. "Thy kingdom is an everlasting kingdom, and thy dominion endureth throughout all generations." God's plan for the whole world will be realized when men come to the throne of the Lamb, bow before the mercy seat,
open their hearts and say, "Come,
Lord Jesus."

A New Heaven
To make new things and to make things new are not the same; the first requires the work of the hand;
the second, the work of the heart.
John describes how an angel took
him into a high mountain and there
showed him a "new heaven and a

SEE JUMP IN PRODUCTION

Washington, Dec. 26 (AP)—The next 12 months should bring record-breaking U. S. production and perhaps an ebb in the tide of rising prices, the government's top economist reported today.

"Given a fair crop year, there's a distinct possibility that 1948 will see an abatement of inflation," said Dr. Edwin G. Nourse, chairman of the President's council of economic advisers.

The three major influences on the economic pulse during the next year, Dr. Nourse told a reporter, probably can be listed in this order:

1. The weather. If wheat, corn and other crops escape the drought which hurt last fall's harvest, food costs could lead the way to more stable prices.

2. Labor relations. A "third round" of sizable wage increases, or a new wave of strikes curtailing production, could heighten inflationary pressures.

3. Foreign aid. Depending on how much help is voted for European recovery, exports could make some existing shortages more critical. The council already has advocated federal controls to keep the scarcity of certain products, including steel and grain, from setting off a further inflationary spin.

Chapter 5

A haze covered the countryside. A warm sunny haze that softened the outlines of village and farm like a golden fog. September had come to New England and with it colder nights, but as yet there was no frost to send leaves swirling groundward and the lush foliage of elm and white birch was only occasionally splashed with red and yellow.

Following the direction of the postmaster at Machias, Brent pushed the jeep toward the coast. The road had narrowed and become a pitted combination of gravel and dirt but Jezebel, having been created for terrain of a rougher sort, took it in her stride.

They proceeded at a leisurely speed, slowing and turning out now and then for a farmer bringing fall produce to market or a wagonload of hay.

Pam had discarded her tweeds for pedal pushers and a sweater. She leaned back in the seat observing the scenery.

"Brent, isn't this wonderful?" "What?"

"Oh all this greenery and space and these hills. I never quite know how much I dislike cities until I get away from them."

"In nine months you'll be saying that about the country."

She pursed her full lips. "I don't think so. I like being sort of cut off from civilization. . . I feel like a pioneer."

Brent chuckled. "You talk as though you're entering darkest Africa, whereas you're tucked right in a long-settled state and probably are only a few miles from a telephone."

"I don't care. these hills are the Rockies to me and Jezebel a prairie schooner. In a sense we are pioneers because we don't know what we're getting into. I feel just like a member of the Donner party heading west."

Brent's hearty laughter defeated even Jezebel's steady chugging.

"An unfortunate comparison, my pet. If I remember my history the Donners were caught in a blizzard and had to resort to cannibalism."

"Well-I- . . ."

"These hills are mere dunes and there isn't a snow cloud on the horizon." He shot her a meditative leer. "But you're right about one thing—I am hungry and you'd make a mighty tasty morsel."

Pam drew back in an exaggerated pose of fear. "I'm tougher than you think. Better wait until we reach Cove Point and settle for a hamburger."

The road was narrow and winding, following coves and inlets; it wove in and out thick stands of birch and hemlock. As they turned a sharp curve a woman stepped out from the road ahead, raising her thumb in the familiar hitch-hiker's gesture. Brent applied the brakes.

Over a freckle-spattered nose, two deep blue eyes peered in at them, examining the jeep and the luggage piled in back.

"You seem to be pretty crowded" she observed.

"Always room in front" Pam invited. "We're going to Cove Point."

The girl smiled. "It's the only place you can go on this road."

She studied them a moment then got in hastily as though trying to decide whether to introduce herself. The Carters took it for natural New England reticence and studied her in turn. They saw a girl in her twenties, with thick sun-streaked blond hair, and an open pleasant face that was almost bovine in its impassivity. Her voice was full and throaty.

"I'm Mary Norbrooke; I teach school in Cove Point."

"How nice," Pam enthused. "Somehow I had the impression that Cove Point wasn't large enough to support a school."

"It just barely is," Miss Norbrooke explained. "But the farmers and fishing outfits combined with a few merchants have enough off-spring to form a unit. I have the first four grades and another girl the upper four. When they get to high school age they move in to Machias."

"Sounds like a handfull" Brent said. "They must keep you hopping."

"Well, I manage to keep the younger ones busy with drawing and botany. The older ones know more about the flora and fauna around here than I do. . . that's why I'm out her today—sizing up the vegetation. School begins next week."

"Oh. But aren't we quite a ways from Cove Point?" Pam said.

"About seven miles. I became too enthusiastic and overestimated my hiking capacities." She sent them a curious half-speculative glance. "You're not coming to Cove Point to live, are you?"

"For awhile" Pam admitted. "You must be artists then."

"Artists?" Pam's green eyes widened. "No, we're not. My husband is planning to do some literary work. Is there an art colony around here?"

"No, but a few painters usually show up this time of year—the foliage is so lovely when it begins to turn it seems to inspire them."

Pam sighed. "I don't want to be nosey," Mary Norbrooke said, but have you a place to stay? There is no hotel you know."

"We're staying at Clearview, it's a few miles out of town, I think."

"Clearview."

For the first time the young school teacher's calm expressionless face showed emotion. It was a strange mixture of surprise and regret.

"I thought it had been boarded up for the winter."

"I believe it has been," Pam said hastily. "We're occupying the caretaker's cottage, you see, not the main house. You seem rather startled Miss Norbrooke—is there something we should know about?"

"I don't know, that is—no one seems to know."

She stared at them miserably then her lips tightened as though she had already said far too much.

Chapter 6

Perhaps Pam Carter had more than her share of feminine curiosity. It had not taken Brent long to discover that any suggestion of secrecy or repression converted her into a stubbornly prying creature who prodded and poked and baited until a soft spot in his mental armor was reached, then went at the exposed portion with the vicious persistence of a summer-resort mosquito.

He had never succeeded in keeping a secret from Pam. Her methods were devious and disarming. Her questions, subtly veiled, were asked in a gentle diffident tone that was dangerously deceptive and usually hood-winked her victim into voluntary revelations.

Now, as Mary Norbrooke's full lips formed a tense thin line, he could almost feel Pam's curiosity inflating to the bursting point and he knew she was gathering all her ferreting forces for a sudden attack. He nudged her but it was already too late; the type of incursion came as a complete surprise to him, it was in such contradiction to Pam's usual circuitous methods.

"Look here, Miss Norbrooke," she said. "We know there's something mysterious about Clearview, but what is it?"

The doubt in the schoolteacher's eyes seemed to fade.

"Aren't you relatives of the owner?"

Pam laughed, rather falsely Brent thought. "Heavens no! We don't even know the owner . . . or his name."

"But didn't you say you were going to live there?"

"In the caretaker's cottage," Pam corrected. "To put it in a nut shell, our New York apartment lease was up, my husband disliked his job and wanted to write a book, and we saw this ad for a couple to occupy the cottage at Clearview for the next nine months, so we took the bull by the horns." She paused breathlessly. "Don't you believe me?"

Mary Norbrooke blushed again. "Of course. It—it sounds quite logical. Who did you make arrangements with? Didn't you meet the owner?"

"No—it was all handled by his lawyer, a Mr. Spence."

"Oh . . . I see."

"You see what?"

Mary swallowed painfully as though reaching a decision was like taking a dose of bitter medicine. "You see, no one up here has ever seen or met the owner either."

"Perhaps he just acquired Clearview. Who owned it before him?"

"No one, I mean . . ." Mary's words fell over each other. "An eccentric old bachelor built it around 1910. After his death in 1925 it was sold through an agency in New York. No one here knows the new owner."

Pam tossed her head impatiently. "But he must pay taxes and he lives here part of the time, doesn't he?"

"Everything is handled by that Mr. Spence you spoke of. The owner apparently lives here in the summer but we've never seen him face to face. Occasionally one of his friends comes into Cove Point to buy cigars or gum or bread but that's all and they're always awfully close-mouthed."

Brent smiled, thinking that such a long time history would be as galling to "Down easter" as it would be to Pam. He steered Jezebel around a particularly bad hole then turned to stare at Mary Norbrooke.

"They must have had to eat. Didn't they buy food from the farmers or fishermen around here?"

Mary shook her head. "No, they drove up here—lovely expensive automobiles. There's a private dock leading out to the property and a yacht used to tie up to it. I suppose they brought their supplies on that. Once or twice kids have gone to the back door trying to sell early blueberries or lobsters but they've always been turned away."

Brent chuckled. "You sound as though the situation had been thoroughly hashed over in the village."

Mary smiled a but guilty. "It has. We get some pretty cold stormy winter nights here when there isn't much to talk about."

"Well, there must be a simple explanation. A man doesn't own yachts and real estate without signing papers. Maybe we can shed some light on it after we've lived there a while."

Mary nodded dubiously then pointed to a frame house ahead. "Here's the Widow Adam's house. I live here. Thanks awfully for the ride."

Pam shot her a rueful little smile. "I'm afraid I've been lax with the amenities. We're Mr. and Mrs. Brentwood Carter, Miss Norbrooke—I do hope we'll see more of you while we're here."

The young schoolteacher ducked her head as though suddenly overcome by embarrassment, murmured "I hope so too" and ran across the road. Jezebel picked up speed again.

"Gosh, Brent, just look at this scenery!" Pam exclaimed.

He nodded absently. "It's certainly colorful."

"Take it all in," she warned "and get it out of your system or you won't be able to concentrate on your book."

To the right of the road spreading patches of wild blueberry bushes stretched to the ocean, their leaves crimsoning in the salt air. Boulders, their edges smoothed by centuries of resistance to the waves, formed a barricade along the water's edge and beyond them the north Atlantic extended limitlessly in slow undulating swells. Inland, stands of spruce and hemlock formed a dark background for the mellowing foliage of birch and venerable elm.

It was warm autumnal and breath-taking but neither of the Carters were thinking of the beauties of nature—the growing mysteriousness of Clearview lingered in their minds. Pam expressed it for both of them—

"I wonder just what we're getting into," she said thoughtfully.

Chapter 7

Mr. Spence's veracity was confirmed in one respect. He had called Cove Point "barely more than a village" and he was correct. The Carters were almost through the little town before they realized they were upon it. Only a sudden cry from Pam made Brent apply the brakes in time.

"Hey, hold everything!" she commanded. "I've got to stop at a grocery and refurbish the caretaker's larder if we expect to eat tonight."

"Well, pick out your store. I haven't seen anything even faintly resembling one yet." He slowed Jezebel down to a crawl.

The main street, which they were on, had been tarred and graveled but the narrow lanes leading off it were dusty and rutted. Plain white-framed elm shaded houses were set back from them, a few surrounded by the tall knobbed fences so dear to New Englanders. Where the road made a sudden jog a church of old meeting-house architecture, severe and dignified, stared down the street, its windows like brooding eyes, reflecting upon the sins and omissions of its congregation.

They passed it and a second later Brent pointed sharply. . .

"There you are—the heart of the metropolis."

An overhead sign unnecessarily announced CRABTREE'S GENERAL MERCHANDISE AND GROCERIES. The front door was surrounded by barrels of apples, striped squash and pumpkins and all manner of hardware. A small gas station and a drugstore, both quite deserted, flanked Mr. Crabtree's establishment.

To the right the road was exposed to the ocean. A few piers extended into the deep rolling swells. Dorries were tied to these and at the end of one was a low flat many-windowed building from which came a hum of activity.

As the Carters entered the store, an eagle-eyed, leather-skinned man arose from behind a bin where he had been sorting potatoes. His bright blue eyes examined them sharply and Pam thought she detected a somewhat scornful "Humm, city folks" forming in them. She decided that Mr. Crabtree would stand for no beating about the bush—with his sort you placed all your cards on the table.

"Are you Mr. Crabtree?" she ventured.

"Don't always like to admit it," he said wryly, "but I am."

Pam smiled with relief. At least the storekeeper had a sense of humor even if it was of the dry, dead-pan variety.

"We're Mr. and Mrs. Carter," she stated flatly. "We're going to occupy the caretaker's cottage at Clearview and I want to stock up."

Mr. Crabtree placed his hands palm down on the counter. His eyes flickered over them briefly yet somehow quite thoroughly.

"I see," Mr. Crabtree said slowly. "Well, if you've got a big order it will take a while. I'm all alone here."

He went into the back of the store and promptly refuted his statement by calling to a small boy playing in the stock room. "Hey, Timmie, want you to run an errand for me?" This was followed by an undistinguishable harsh whisper and the thump of bare feet running out of the back door.

"Everybody's out at the sardine factory," Mr. Crabtree explained on returning. "Had a big run yesterday."

Pam was suddenly thrilled. She thought of the tiny silver fish preserved in oil and imported from Norway which she loved and sighed. . .

"Gosh, real sardines! I didn't know they grew around here."

The ghost of a smile flattered across the proprietor's face.

"In New England, any small fish with soft bones is called a sardine. Up here it's herring."

Pam felt dashed. There went another illusion. She put her finger on her chin and began giving Mr. Crabtree the order. Brent wandered around the store examining seining nets and fishing tackle. Though he had never before succumbed to the Isaac Walton urge, the smell of tar-paulin and boating gear seeped into his blood. He had almost made up his mind to invest in a pair of wading boots when the gasping wheeze of an over-exerted human being made him look up. A short rotund man stood in the doorway, his brown skin contrasting strikingly with his white hair, his chest heaving.

Mr. Crabtree paused in his measurement of sugar. . .

"Come in, Constable Binny, come in." He turned to the Carters. "These folks are taking over the caretaker's cottage at Clearview, name's Carter."

Constable Binny's wire-haired brows rose significantly. "Well, that's mighty interestin', mighty interestin'." He began plying the questions that Crabtree had left unasked but some sudden streak of perversity in Pam made her parry them with the skill of an experienced witness.

Finally, when she turned her enormous green eyes—on him with a look that said he was just plain nosy, he stopped, redefaced, and helped Crabtree fill her order.

But as they left the store Pam relented, after all it was always better to have the law on your side.

"It's been a pleasure meeting you both," she said effusively. "The Cove seems to be just full of nice people—we gave a lift to your young schoolteacher coming in; I'm looking forward to meeting more Cove Pointers."

As Brent headed the jeep northward, he stared at her.

"Why all the over-enthusiasm?" Pam was peeking out the rear window. "I just wanted to see if Constable Binny would head for Mary Norbrooke's house, and there he goes—this time on a bicycle," she added.

Brent frowned. "They're certainly interested in us. Crabtree sent that boy out to get Binny and have him look us over. A local custom, maybe."

"This entire journey has been queer right from the start. Brent, I feel just like Alice entering Wonderland—everything grows curiouser and curiouser."

Chapter 8

As Cove Point fell away behind the jeep, the road narrowed and the stands of spruce and hemlock receded. Almost every tenth of a mile a wider space had been cleared where a car could wait rather than risk a meeting with an oncoming truck or wagon. Now, however, the road was quite deserted and Jezebel chugged ahead steadily.

"We must be on a peninsula," he guessed. "Should have asked Mr. Crabtree something about the country."

"Mr. Crabtree was having all he could do not to ask something about the Carters," Pam said.

"Well, Constable Binny certainly made up for his reticence."

They turned sharply to the left and plunged into timber again. Brent frowned at the speedometer. "Three miles from town—no more to go."

"I wonder if Clearview is one of those Victorian monstrosities with cupolas and belvederes and other jimeracks," Pam mused.

"Why should it be?"

"Miss Norbrooke said it was built by an eccentric bachelor in 1910."

"Maybe his eccentricities didn't include architecture. Maybe he was a nudist, or chased butterflies or put chocolate sauce on his spinach."

Pam pinched his arm sharply. "Let's abandon the lights of fancy, pet. I have an idea that this is it."

They had been following a low fieldstone wall behind which were tall tracts of hemlock which barred all view of the coast. Now the wall curved in to an impressive wrought-iron gate then continued again on the other side. Iron scrollwork set in the gate announced Clearview.

The gates were closed but well oiled. They swung back silently as Brent lifted the long iron bar and pushed. Pam ran the jeep through then Brent closed and barred the gate and stared down at the road.

"Tire tracks," he commented, "fresh ones too."

"Probably the retiring caretaker leaving," Pam suggested.

"Spence certainly was vague," Brent said climbing into Jezebel.

"He answered everything we asked him," Pam pointed out. "We just didn't ask him enough. I guess."

Brent leaned over and gave her a quick kiss on the forehead, almost colliding with a century-old pine in the process. "My practical spouse. But if we run into any more mysteries, I'm sending Spence a questionnaire."

"Aren't caretakers' cottages supposed to be near the entrance?"

"You're thinking of gatekeepers," Brent explained.

It began to grow dark rapidly; a coastal breeze had sprung up and was tossing the branches of the trees that screened Clearview from the road. Pam shivered slightly and reached for her jacket. In the rear seat, Zarathustra, with feline instinct, sensed that his tiresome journey was at an end and began meowing frantically for release.

"There's your monstrosity!" Brent pointed suddenly to the left.

Pam's supposition hadn't been too far wrong. Clearview was hybrid. The lower floor was sturdy fieldstone built with the solid defensiveness of the Revolutionary era. The side that faced the ocean and the one facing the road were graced with a wide veranda. Above it the house reverted to white frame with a widow's walk and oddly placed gables. It fronted on the sea, almost defiantly, as though daring Atlantic storms to best it.

There were strange pieces of Greek statuary placed around what had once been a lawn. In the setting twilight they loomed like frozen ghosts, strangely incompatible with the house.

The caretaker's cottage stood in a small grove of scrub pine about one hundred yards from the main house. It was constructed entirely of fieldstone with a slate roof. The door responded to the key Mr. Spence had given the Carters. Brent stumbled into a standing lamp, tried the switch and to his amazement the room came to life in the sudden yellow glow. Pam emitted a high squeal of delight—

"Brent, it is attractive!"

The lower floor was comprised of a kitchen and living room, the latter, decorated with gay floral-patterned chintzes, boasted a fireplace. A narrow stair led to two small bedrooms joined by a bath. Brent put a match to the kindling and stared around him.

"Not bad, in fact, it's spacious compared to that New York fire-trap."

"Anyway it's home for the next nine months. Maybe we better bring in Zara and let him inspect it."

Brent yawned. "I suppose if he turns up his aristocratic nose at it you'll head back to the city immediately."

Pam laughed and, grabbing his ears affectionately, pulled his head down and kissed his sunburned nose. "You still come before the cat, pet."

"Okay woman, then rustle me up some grub."

As Pam inspected the kitchen trying out taps and switches, Brent brought in the luggage and groceries. After depositing the last bag he caught sight of her peering steadily through the little window over the sink. Water ran unheeded into an already full kettle. He turned it off.

"Hey, go easy with the water until I investigate the system, Pam." Then he saw her expression. "What's the matter?"

"Brent, I saw a light in the main house!"

He looked over her shoulder. "You couldn't have. Must have been a reflection from the jeep's headlights."

"No, I'm certain—" She faced him stubbornly then, noting the rings of exhaustion beneath his eyes, her voice softened. "Well, maybe it was," she lied.

Cheerleaders To Be Busy At Tampa

Tampa, Fla., Dec. 26 (AP)—Two West Chester (Pa.) Teachers college cheer leaders are going to be busy little ladies along about New Year's Day.

Shirley McPherson, of Lancaster, Pa., and Claire Maurer, of Jenkintown, Pa., both seniors at West Chester, wrote the owners of several Tampa hotels that they needed some ready cash to come to Tampa to lead cheers for their team in the Cigar January 1.

The present prices were continued and another half cent was added to increase the dealers' spread by 23c, a hundred lbs. of milk after Bowl game against the Missouri Valley Vikings.

One hotel owner employed them as waitresses and another provided them with a hotel room. On New Year's Day the girls will shift from their waitresses uniforms to sweaters and skirts to lead the West Chester cheering section.

Sliced frankfurters added to well-seasoned tomato soup make a hearty luncheon or supper dish.

Commission Chairman H. N. Cobb said testimony at recent hearing showed boosts in distribution costs made the jump necessary.

TRUMAN MAY WAIT FOR GOP NOMINATIONS

By JACK BELL
Washington, Dec. 26 (AP)—President Truman may wait until after the Republican choose their Presidential candidate next summer before he picks his running mate on the 1948 Democratic ticket.

Democratic politicians in a position to know what is being discussed at the White House told this writer that Mr. Truman is looking for a large field but will not make views on the No. 2 man known until he sizes up the GOP nominee. The President will have time for a minute decision of this sort before the Fourth of July holiday session between the Republican convention, which begins June 21 in Philadelphia and the Democratic convention in the same setting starts July 12.

Dozen Possibilities
At this point, more than six dozen in advance of any decision. President may make—which is likely to be the deciding factor—nominations are discussing a round of possible candidates.

These include a scattering of actors, at least one representative, couple of cabinet members, a Supreme Court justice and just about everybody who has raised his hand among the common level of Democratic party in the last few years.

The House member, Rep. John Corman of Massachusetts, stands out in early speculation largely because most Democrats think that Republicans will go east, possibly to Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York or House Speaker Joe Martin of Massachusetts, for a residential nominee.

To Match GOP Slate

One among those who have voice in Democratic party affairs that Mr. Truman will try to match his Vice Presidential nominee with a Republican choice of a top man. Thus, they argue, if the GOP picks Senator Taft (R-Ohio) for its standard-bearer, the President might decide that Senator Lucas (D-Ill.) would be the proper man to tip him make the 1948 campaign.

On the other hand, if the Republicans cast their lot with a military hero—and Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and Gen. Douglas MacArthur are mentioned in this connection—the Democrats might go for Gen. Chester Nimitz or somebody in a same mold for their second man.

Forrestal Is Out

Defense Secretary Forrestal already has eliminated himself from competition on this score, but at least two other cabinet members are represented by the Democratic officials are perfectly willing to run with Mr. Truman.

Included in this category is Secretary of Commerce Harriman, whose New York connections largely tie with Wall Street and thus considered somewhat under par from political standpoint.

The other cabinet member is Secretary of Agriculture Anderson, who comes from sparsely-populated New Mexico and hence has little chance in the view of the political dopesters, unless Mr. Truman thinks that November will be walk-in.

PHONES STORY OF SON'S DEATH

Philadelphia, Dec. 26 (AP)—For 26 years Thomas J. O'Hara of Pittsburgh, Pa., has been telephoning in news from the Pennsylvania anthracite coal region to Philadelphia newspapers in his role as "correspondent."

Yesterday the city desk of the Philadelphia Inquirer got a call from O'Hara.

"I've got a bad one," O'Hara said. "I don't know how to tell you. My son was killed early today in an automobile accident on his way home to our first complete family reunion in seven years."

Then O'Hara went on about his business of telling a rewriter the details of his story.

Francis T. O'Hara, 22, a veteran of five years' service in the navy, and for the last six months a chemical operator in a plant at Niagara Falls, N. Y., was fatally injured in a highway crash on icy roads while a friend was driving him to an airport for the flight home.

Waiting at home in Pittston were his parents, two brothers, two sisters and a little nephew, all assembled for the first time in seven years.

OFF FOR TAMPA

Philadelphia, Dec. 26 (AP)—Thirty-two members of the West Chester (Pa.) Teachers' college football squad leave today for Tampa, Fla., to meet Missouri Valley college of Marshall, Mo., in the Cigar Bowl game on New Year's Day.

The squad, traveling by train, is scheduled to arrive in the Florida city tomorrow morning.

Halifax, N. S., Dec. 24 (AP)—An American seaborne and western commercial plane flashed distress signals today saying one of its engines was "running wild" at a position over the Atlantic 400 miles from its destination at Gander, Newfoundland.

PLASTIC COAT CAN KEEP EGGS FRESH A YEAR

Chicago, Dec. 26 (AP)—Coating eggs with a plastic film will keep them fresh for a year without refrigeration, the American Association for the advancement of science was told today.

This information was part of a report by Dr. Gustav Edloff and Mary Alexander of the Universal Oil Products company of Chicago, who said petroleum chemicals "provide a wide variety of food preservatives."

"Freshness is preserved in cold storage eggs much longer when they are subjected to a treatment which involves dipping the eggs in oil," their report said.

"Experiments indicate that even better results can be obtained from coating the eggs with a thin plastic film. Eggs thus treated maintain their freshness without any refrigeration for as long as a year."

Needs For Fuel
The A.A.A.S., with its 200 affiliated and associated societies, opened its week-long 114th annual meeting today.

In another report professor S. W. Hockett of Iowa Wesleyan college said that weeds—the perennial headache of the farmer—are a potential source of synthetic gasoline and oil.

Describing research which he said points to the possibility of using low-cost, "high-volatile" coals of the Middle West as a rich source of synthetic liquid, gaseous and powdered coal fuels, Hockett said in a prepared report: "Rank of fuel proves insignificant where liquefaction is concerned. Lignite, peat, wood, chaff, or even weeds may serve as raw material for the manufacture of liquid synthetic fuel."

UN Employees Are Holiday Guests
Binghamton, N. Y., Dec. 26 (AP)—Well-fed, jolly groups of United Nations employees from 35 countries set forth today to view the inner workings of the three industrial communities that gave them an American Christmas with all the trimmings.

Stored away for recollection in odd moments at bustling Lake Success were memories of warm hearths, clean snow, bountiful tables, mistletoe and gay present-opening sessions under tinsel Christmas trees.

The 175 clerks, typists, interpreters and other workers of the peace organization have been entertained since Christmas eve at approximately 100 homes in Binghamton, Endicott and Johnson City as a good will gesture from the south central New York area.

Local families, too, will treasure the experience.

During the battle of Belgium in World War II there were more civilian than military casualties.

The average cost of the U. S. weather service is about six cents per capita each year.

5 HURT IN TRAIN CRASH IN MIAMI

Miami, Fla., Dec. 26 (AP)—A Florida east coast passenger train bound from Miami to Jacksonville ripped into a freight train here early today, injuring five members of the crew. Fourteen railroad cars were either demolished or badly damaged.

J. R. Ashworth, of Miami, engineer on the passenger train, escaped death as his locomotive plowed through one freight car and on into another. He was injured and taken to a hospital. Ashworth, 65, was reported in fair condition with burns about the face and body.

Eleven passengers, all negroes, were brought to the hospital for examination. The accident occurred just north of 118th street.

No one was able to recount how the accident occurred, but most railmen believed a part of the front car section of the freight train heading south jumped the rail as the passenger train, going north, was passing. The freight train locomotive continued south, carrying a few cars with it for almost a mile.

Four of the passenger train cars were derailed in the accident. The passenger locomotive did not explode, but steam poured from the sides of the big engine for two hours afterward.

The locomotive of the passenger train was almost on its side after the collision, seemingly held up by

INSANE MAN KILLS ITALIAN

Stockholm, Dec. 26 (AP)—The insane balloon vendor who police said confessed murdering Italian Minister to Sweden Alberto Bellardi Ricci with a pair of scissors yesterday, was on his first leave from an asylum in seven years, Dr. Goldkuhl of Langbro mental home said today. The vendor, Giuseppe Capocci, who was being treated for dementia praecox, was said to have "improved considerably" recently, and therefore was given a few hours of leave for Christmas. Police Commissioner A. Ljungdahl

STRAY BULLETS UP DEATH TOLL IN HOLY LAND

Jerusalem, Dec. 26 (AP)—Arab attackers slew Hans Beith, a high ranking Jewish agency official, and four other Jews in attacks on two Jewish convoys in the Jerusalem area today, associates of Beith reported.

Jerusalem, Dec. 26 (AP)—Stray snipers' bullets killed a three-year-old Jewish girl in her crib and a 70-year-old Jewish woman today in the Holy Land's Arab-Jewish warfare. Five other persons also met violent deaths.

The child, victim of the border strife in the Tel Aviv-Jaffa area, was found by her mother this morning, lying in a pool of blood.

The 70-year-old woman was slain by a sniper as she stood on a balcony during an attack in Haifa by Hagana, the Jewish militia. The house under attack was believed sheltering Arab riflemen.

Two British civilians were found shot to death in the area of Hadar Carmel in Haifa. Both were believed to have fallen in the fighting between the Jewish and Arab snipers. One was identified as Christopher William Thornton, 41, diesel engineer for the Iraq Petroleum company.

Wounded School Girl. Two other Jews and one Arab died in Hagana's attack and one Arab was wounded. Five other Jews were wounded in Haifa, one an eight-year-old girl who was on her way to school.

Reliable but unofficial reports said 10 Arabs and two Jews were killed in the running Haifa battle yesterday. At a naval torpedo depot near Acre, several Arabs penetrated the guard room but were driven off and fled in a taxi. Police said they did not know whether the Arabs had succeeded in seizing any arms.

The new deaths raised the Holy Land toll to 354 since communal fighting was touched off by the United Nations decision November 29 to partition Palestine.

Thirty-one Arabs, 12 Jews, three British constables and two soldiers were wounded in the bloody Christmas Day encounters, during which Hagana fighters used long range weapons and British troops manned roof tops in an attempt to quell the violence.

NAMES OMITTED. The following names were inadvertently omitted from the list of those who attended the 40th wedding anniversary celebration of Mr. and Mrs. Joel D. Schwartz last Saturday at Two Taverns: Miss Anna Mary Benner, Pittsburgh; Mr. and Mrs. Howard Conover, Littlestown R. D. and Mrs. Willis Waybright, Gettysburg.

Fred R. and Nellie M. Hill, Reading township, sold to Elmer G. and Verna C. Livingston, same place, two properties containing 70 acres in that township.

Ella A. H. and Alvin Becker, Littlestown, and others, sold to Joseph M. and Hilda P. Miller, Oxford township, a tract in Oxford township.

Farmers and Merchants bank, New Oxford, sold to Paul H. and Catherine E. Topper, Gettysburg R. 4, a 34-acre property in Mt. Pleasant township.

ROADS SLIPPERY

(Continued from Page 1) delayed in getting to work as buses and trolleys ran as much as 45 minutes behind schedule. The Philadelphia Transportation company called out 800 men to keep the trolley tracks open with 50 sweepers and 46 motor-driven plows. The Pennsylvania railroad reported its trains were from five to nine minutes late.

"Wally" Again Named Best-dressed Woman

New York, Dec. 26 (AP)—The Duchess of Windsor this year regained her crown as the world's best-dressed woman, being voted tops in the annual list of the "ten best-dressed," as announced today by the New York Dress Institute.

The woman who once charmed a king off his throne is the ultra-conservative type, choosing for the most part the simplest possible daytime clothes in black, navy or ecru.

15 FROM STATE ARE VICTIMS OF XMAS ACCIDENTS

(By The Associated Press)
Fifteen Pennsylvanians died as the results of accidents, fires and other mishaps during the Christmas holiday, two of them in other states.
John H. Mitchell, 42-year-old Spring City farmhand, was killed by an automobile last night while riding a bicycle he had received for Christmas.
Two highway deaths were reported from Indiana county. George Ellsaway, 60, of near Homer City was killed by a hit-run motorist. Coroner E. L. Fleming reported, and Francis McCloskey, 22, of R. D. 1, Homer City, died last night in the collision of his car with a truck.
Joseph M. Kruger, 65, of Pittsburgh, died of injuries after being struck by a trolley car.
Man Electrocuted
Five deaths were reported in Fayette county. Mrs. Nancy Moore, 61, of Brookville, was killed by a taxi

SEVEN PERISH IN HOTEL FIRE AT ORANGE, TEX.
Orange, Tex., Dec. 26 (AP)—Seven persons perished in the flame-swept halls and rooms of a small hotel last night while six other guests jumped from windows to safety.
Only five of the seven dead had been identified early today. Nineteen persons were registered but only 13 were in the hotel when the blaze broke out.
The identified dead were listed as Pa., died in a blaze that destroyed a one-story home in Metuchen, N. J. The fire also took the life of Clarence Brown, of Metuchen.
Francis O'Hara, navy veteran and recently a chemical plant worker, was killed at Niagara Falls, N. Y., while a friend was driving him to an airport to fly home to Pittston, Pa., for Christmas.
Junious O. Carter, from Pennsylvania, city not available; W. L. Jordan, 41, Tampa, Fla.; Bill Douglas, 35, address unknown, and Ralph Slade, 72, and Early Giesler, 43, both of Orange.
The bodies of a man and a woman had not been identified.
Three of the bodies were found in halls and four in rooms. All were in sleeping garments.
Loss Is $50,000
Assistant Fire Chief E. L. Barker estimated damage to the building and furnishings at $50,000.
One of the seven was alive when found by firemen, but died on the way to a hospital.
Mrs. Liska Sikes, owner of the hotel, said that 19 persons were living at the hotel, including herself. Mrs. Sikes was in Lake Charles, La., when the fire started but returned here as soon as she was notified.
The blaze started around 11:45 p. m. and was discovered by a taxi-cab driver.
Barker said a complete search had been made of the building and that he was satisfied there were no more bodies.
Barker said the building, housing five small business concerns with the hotel on the second floor, was "all ablaze" when firemen arrived.
Jumps To Safety
Smoke and screams awakened some guests and one, L. A. Blessitt, leaped from a window to the roof of an adjoining building.
Blessitt said he was awakened by smoke and heard a man scream. He said he threw his clothing out the window onto the roof of the building then jumped.
Another guest, Cecil A. Raines, said he was awakened by a woman pounding on his door. He did not know if the unidentified woman made her way to safety.
The hotel occupied the top floor of a two-story building with several small business concerns on the street level.

ACCIDENT TOLL HEAVY FOR XMAS ACROSS NATION
(By The Associated Press)
A heavy toll of violent deaths—with traffic and fires the principle causes—marked the nation's celebration of the Christmas holiday.
Accidents on the highways, as usual over a holiday period, resulted in the largest number of deaths—at least 171. But fatalities from miscellaneous causes were past the 100 mark, more than double the toll last Christmas.
More than 30 persons died in fires, including 10 Indians in a gambling shack in Gardnerville, Nevada; seven persons in a small hotel in Orange, Texas, and four others in a dance hall near Fredericksburg, Texas. Others killed in fires over the holiday included seven in Michigan and two each in Connecticut and Maryland.
California Leads
The traffic toll of 171 and 102 from miscellaneous causes for a total of 273 covered the period from 6 p. m. Christmas Eve to last midnight. For the corresponding period last year the total was 261, including 213 traffic deaths and 48 fatalities from miscellaneous causes—fires, plane and train crashes, asphyxiation, etc.
The National Safety Council, although making no prediction for the period covered in the survey, had estimated that traffic accidents for the four-day Christmas holiday period will total 400.
California led the nation in violent fatalities, the same as last Christmas, but this year's total of 27 compared with 57 last year. This year's traffic toll in California was 21 as against a record 55 in 1946.
Texas ranked second with a total of 25, including 10 in motor mishaps. New York's was third highest and including 14 deaths from miscellaneous causes.

Common Cold Germ Has Been Isolated
Washington, Dec. 26 (AP)—A long-sought objective of science—laboratory isolation and growth of a "common cold" germ—has been achieved by two researchers of the National Institute of Health.
The development, which opens the way to the "possibility" of producing a protective vaccine against this germ, was announced by Doctors Norman Topping and Leon T. Atlas.
The research was aided by prisoners of the District of Columbia's Lawton reformatory who volunteered to contract experimental colds. It was described in the technical journal "Science" and amplification of the details was provided at a news conference.
Starting with material taken from the nose of another scientist who was stricken with a natural cold, the doctors said they were able to grow in the fluid of fertile hens' eggs an "agent" which produced a characteristic cold in 57 of 60 prisoner volunteers inoculated with it.
FAMILY HOMELESS
Des Moines, Ia., Dec. 26 (AP)—Mr. and Mrs. James Rhodes and their 12 children, who lost everything except the night clothes they were wearing when their 5-room house was destroyed by fire yesterday, were fairly well equipped to set up house-keeping again today, because of the generosity of Polk county residents. However, one problem—the knottiest of all—remained unsolved, finding a house to live in.
Speer Siamese Twins Die After 27 Days
Indianapolis, Dec. 26 (AP)—The Speer Siamese twins, boys joined at the tops of their heads—one of the rarest births in medical history—died on Christmas Day, 27 days after their birth, about one hour apart.
The twins, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Speer, were born in Bedford Nov. 29 by Caesarian section and were brought to the Indiana university medical center soon afterward. They lived out their short lives lying head to head, their faces up, most of the time in an incubator.
The infants were examined by specialists to determine if they could be separated, but all agreed the twins had a common brain tissue and an operation would be fatal.
Y C I TO CLOSE
York, Pa., Dec. 24 (AP)—York Collegiate Institute will close at the end of the present school year after continuous operation since 1799. Dr. Thomas S. Dickson, president of the board of trustees, explained the school—one of the commonwealth's oldest secondary institutions—has operated at a loss for 15 years. YCI's buildings will be taken over by York Junior college.
